Speaking of his counsel, Messrs. C. Maurice Smith and Joseph Shillington, Cross said that they had done all that could have been done for him, and he knew that they would not give up until the last minute. He felt very grateful and he thanked them with all his heart, but that was about all he could give them. Werden Burke and his officers morning District Attorney Cole received a note from Solicitor General Aldrich suggesting that a postponement of the execution be asked of the court. This afternoon, after a consultation with Mr. C. Maurice Smith, of counsel for Cross, the attention of Judge Cox, at present presiding over the Criminal Court was called to the matter and it was arranged that Cross should be brought into court the
